Excerpt: . one which would have made intelligible speech absolutely impossible into a child who is now one with simply a peculiar facial expression and a slight difficulty of speech. Patients with tuberculous conditions of the bones and joints present conditions very much more difficult to treat. VWith proper care such as is given at the institution we have usually secured good results. For example, S. A. came to the hospital August 19, 1907. She began to be lame June 22, 1907. When admitted to the hospital she complained of severe pain and great tenderness of the right hip joint. An abscess had formed in the joint and there was considerable deformity with her leg about 1 ; inches shorter than the left. The parents reported that the child cried out continually at night because of pain, and her general condition was very poor. Physical examination and X-ray pictures indicated tuberculosis of the hip joint. She was put to bed at once and weight and pulley traction applied to the leg. On December 13, 1907, her first plaster cast was applied and from this time until November 26, 1913, she wore casts or was in bed most of the time. In June, 1908, an abscess in the hip joint had to be opened. This healed immediately, however, and her progress continued. When discharged from the hospital November 26, 1913, she had been here a total of 2,327 days. She had not only recovered from her...
