June 30th. --Steering S. by E. for nine miles, we again struck the river, on which we had camped last night, and following it down for a mile we halted. This country is far less rough than that through which we passed farther North. The invalids are both better to-day. Latitude of Camp 16 53 42. July 1st. --We did not go more than eight miles to-day, camping on another running stream; this halting place bearing S. E. from the one we left last night. When we collected the horses in the morning, we found one of the DeGrey ponies missing, but soon discovered him lying in a gully. He was very weak and unable to stand, so we shot him and cut off about ten pounds of his flesh, which we afterwards ate--the first time I ever tasted horse-flesh in my life. July...
